Confused about your exam or college applications? B.Sc Nursing Admission in Delhi 2022: With the rising demand for higher education degrees in the health care and nursing field, B.Sc Nursing has become one of the popular choices for students across the Indian subcontinent. In many states, admissions to the B.Sc Nursing courses offered in government and private colleges are done based on either state-level entrance exams or university-level entrance exams. B.Sc Nursing is a great course choice to build your career as a Nurse. In Delhi, many colleges offer admissions to the 4-year UG degree in Nursing on the basis of entrance test scores, which are conducted at a university level. Educational and medical education institutions such as AIIMS, Lady Hardinge Medical College, etc. conduct unique entrance exams for their aspirants. In all cases, candidates will be asked to participate in B.Sc nursing entrance exams in Delhi and further selection processes, as specified by the different nursing colleges. In this article, we shall discuss all the important information regarding B.Sc Nursing admissions such as the eligibility criteria, admissions and selection processes among others. NEET 2022 Cutoff/NEET 2022 Counselling process/Delhi B.Sc Nursing Admissions 2022 Important Dates There are a number of B.Sc Nursing colleges in Delhi offering admissions. The tentative and common schedule for admission to these colleges is mentioned below. Events Dates Application Commences April 2022 Application Ends August 2022 Entrance Exam (if any like NEET) September 2022 Exam Result: NEET November 2022 Counselling To be announced Delhi B.Sc Nursing Eligibility Criteria 2022 One of the important parameters for B.Sc Nursing admissions in Delhi is to meet the eligibility criteria for the course as defined by the institution offering the degree. Generally, each college will specify its eligibility criteria, however, there is a general course requirement for B.Sc Nursing in Delhi. Check out the following table for Delhi B.Sc Nursing eligibility criteria 2022. Academic Requirement 10+2 (Science Stream) Aggregate Score Requirement 50% and Above Subject Preference Physics, Chemistry and Biology with English Age Limit 17 as on 31st December 2022 Physical Fitness Yes/No: All candidates who wish to appear for the requisite admission processes conducted by the different colleges and institutions, must ensure that they meet the needed eligibility and complete the processes as per the guidelines. Candidates who are currently appearing for their qualifying exams and/or are awaiting their qualifying results can also apply for the 2022 academic year. Also Read:- ANM Vs GNM Vs B.Sc Nursing: Which is the Best Course for you? Delhi B.Sc Nursing Admissions Processes 2022 As is the case in many higher education degrees, all candidates need to participate in specific admissions processes for B.Sc Nursing in Delhi. Among the popular admission processes that are adopted by medical and nursing colleges in Delhi include either entrance-test based admissions or merit-based admissions. In both cases, candidates will partake in selection processes unique to individual colleges and their requirements. Check out the Delhi B.Sc Nursing admission processes opted by the top nursing colleges in Delhi. Entrance-Based Admissions:- The more common of the admission processes, colleges or institutions will conduct a university-level entrance test or accept NEET 2022 Marks to provide admissions to the B.Sc Nursing degree to aspiring nurses of the future. After attempting the relevant entrance exam, the respective college will release merit lists containing the names of all candidates who partook in the entrance test along with their scores and ranks. Based on their ranks and scores, candidates will be asked to participate in further selection processes, such as a personal interview and/or group discussion. The overall performance of the candidates in the different selection parameters such as the entrance test, past academic record and the performance in the personal interview and/or group discussion, the concerned college or institution will select the prospective students for the B.Sc Nursing course in Delhi. Also Read:- What is Good Score/Rank in NEET-UG 2022? Merit-Based Admissions:- Merit-based admissions for B.Sc Nursing courses in Delhi involves its candidates to have applied to the respective college. However, this mode of admission is uncommon and only a handful of colleges offer admission on merit-basis. After applying within the stipulated date and time, the respective colleges or institutions will release merit-lists containing the names of the applicants and their ranks, which would have been calculated based on their qualifying marks. The college or institution offering admissions will then call the prospective students to participate in the institute-specific selection processes, which may include a Personal Interview and/or Group discussion. Depending on the performance of the candidates in these selection parameters, such as the past academic record and the personal interview and/or group discussion, admissions will be offered to the prospective students. Counselling-based Selections for B.Sc Nursing Courses in Delhi A common selection process opted by the many colleges in India is a counselling-based selection to the different courses. In Delhi, institutions like AIIMS offer admissions based on counselling rounds. This selection process is applicable under both entrance-based admissions and merit-based admissions. In Entrance-based admissions, the authority will release merit lists containing the names of the candidates and their respective ranks and scores obtained in the entrance test. In Merit-Based admissions, the institutions will publish merit lists containing the names of all applicants and their ranks, calculated using the qualifying marks obtained by them. Under both circumstances, each candidate will be asked to participate in counselling rounds in the order of merit, as mentioned in the merit-lists. During the counselling rounds, the candidates will be asked to choose their preferred choice of college and course. Depending on the ranks of the candidates as per the merit-lists, the preferred choice of college and course, and availability of seats in the respective choices, the prospective students will be offered admissions. Note: Each college will specify its requirements for admissions to the B.Sc Nursing course. Therefore, it is advisable to check the admission guidelines and processes before applying for admissions at the college of your choice.
